CAPE FLOWERS

THE BEAUTIFUL "CHINKERICHEE"

from

SOUTH AFRICA.

S. Africa

It is perhaps not generally known that this is one of the most beautiful and at the same time one of the most lasting flowers that can be used for table decoration.

Frequently it has been reported that flowers from the Cape, after three weeks on the voyage in a closed box, have been kept in a vase in the ordinary way for no less than three months before being finally discarded.

The flowers are packed in the bud stage and, if suitably stored on the boat, will arrive in England just ready to open up. They are then brought to the light and will open out and bloom quite naturally, the buds opening in succession from the lowest upwards to the tip, and making a delightful show for six weeks to three months on end.

In this the "Chinkerichee" is unique, for no other flower, that is not of the "Everlasting" type, can rival it for duration. The "Chinkerichee" has none of the stiff and dry appearance of the Helichrysum or Cape Everlasting which, though very beautiful and distinctly suitable for other purposes, is quite out of place in a vase for indoor decoration.

There are two varieties of "Chinkerichee" that can be shipped successfully. They are very similar in appearance but have certain distinctive characters in regard to habit.

What is generally known as the "Cape" variety is found on the Cape Peninsula and in the immediately surrounding country. This variety is often ready for shipment as early as the latter end of September and continues throughout October. Both varieties are white, but this has a darker centre and is the one from which our photograph was taken.

The other is known as the "Darling" variety because it comes from a district of that name some 80 miles from Cape Town. The flower has a yellow centre and is at least a month later in flowering, seldom being available much before the beginning of November. It usually continues for rather more than a month and shipments can frequently be made as late as the 8th or 10th of December.

All the dates given above are dependent upon and liable to alter somewhat according to, seasonal variations.

Of the two varieties the "Cape" is the more easily cultivated and bulbs sent from South Africa should thrive quite well in Great Britain, especially in the South of England. They like a more or less sandy soil but will live in heavier soils also and can stand conditions that might almost be described as swampy. This variety increases rapidly in cultivation—at least it does so in South Africa.

The bulbs of the "Darling" variety are very much larger than those of the "Cape" variety and while the latter will give good blooms from bulbs that are really quite small, the "Darling" variety is only at its best from larger bulbs. Anything from pigeon egg size upwards is good for this variety and under cultivation they frequently increase to the dimensions of a large hen's egg. In spite of this, however, the variety does not increase very freely under cultivation but can be reproduced very successfully from seed, the seedling bulbs flowering about the third season.

While it is quite possible to send the "Chinkerichee" Flowers by parcels post in the ordinary mail, we have found that when sent in that way a certain percentage of the packages arrive in an unaccountably bad condition while the majority, sent at the same time, may reach destination without suffering in the least. It seems to us that this must be due to varying conditions in the stowage of the mails.

In consequence of this uncertainty we have made arrangements to forward in cool storage. The flowers will be consigned to our agents in London ready packed in boxes suitable for posting to final destination. When sent in this way we can guarantee delivery in good condition. We will replace free if the contrary happens.

Price: Flowers, 7/6 per box of 100 blooms, delivered free to any address in the United Kingdom. Shipments principally during October and November.

For Continental addresses the price is 10/- per box.

Bulbs—January to March—"Cape" variety, 2/6 per dozen, 12/6 per 100; "Darling" variety, 3/- per dozen, 17/6 per 100. Post free to any address in the United Kingdom.

Nothing could be more acceptable to your best friend than a box of these flowers sent all the way from South Africa—and at such a trifling cost to you!

Send us your order now and tell us approximately the date of shipment you would prefer. We can not guarantee an exact date because we may not be able to ship every week, but we will send as near the date of your choice as possible.

Payment can be sent in the shape of British Postal Order or Cheque on a London Bank. Cheques on Provincial Banks are also acceptable if the customary exchange on London is added.

Please fill in clearly the particulars required on the order form below and post, with remittance, in the accompanying envelope.

On arrival cut off the ends of the stems—about half an inch—so as to make a fresh wound through which they can draw moisture.

Arrange the flowers immediately in vases filled with lukewarm water and place them in the light of an ordinary room.

If the flowers have arrived in good condition they will open out beautifully and can be kept in the vases for many weeks.

APPRECIATIONS.

Just a few extracts, taken at random, from scores of letters received about last season's flowers.

Farnham Royal, Bucks, Feb. 21, 1925.—Late in October you sent some Chinkerichees and now I am writing to tell you that they have lasted until now and been most beautiful.

Bans Rd., London, March 13, 1925.—The box of flowers arrived in November and the flowers bloomed beautifully and lasted until nearly the end of February in perfect condition.

Bromley, Kent, Jan. 1, 1925.—The box of Chinkerichees you sent came very fresh and green, being so well packed and are now doing well and I am anticipating much pleasure from them as they come out.

Sutton, Surrey, Jan. 1, 1925.—I was presented with a box of your flowers on Dec. 21st, and they were in perfect condition and now are just beginning to unfold their petals. I was delighted with the flowers and find it quite fascinating to watch them open. My friends rather envy me. Naturally I had never before seen or heard of them

Hereford, Jan. 21, 1925.—The Chinkerichees arrived in excellent condition and are lasting in water for many weeks. They are much admired.

Chingford, London, Jan. 29, 1925.—I am writing to thank you for the beautiful box of "Chinks" which came to hand in splendid condition; they opened up well and at the sent time are quite beautiful.
